Legal Help in Wisconsin

State Bar Association of Wisconsin offers free legal advice to Wisconsin citizens who ask for it. Up to two hours. Apply on their website stating your area of interest or problems, and your ZIP code. They then set you up with an attorney who “specializes” that area, and is within your geographic locale.

There are three types of services: [1] Lawyer Referral; [2] Community Referrals; and [3] Lawyer Hotline. See: www.legalexplorer.com

Milwaukee Bar Association offers 30 minutes of the same.: www.milwbar.org/

I suspect that there are a variety of motives involved in offering “free” services. Some attorneys want to give back to the community – offer pro bono services – and others, perhaps newcomers to the field, want to attract new clients who will continue to use their services into the future for a fee.

With all attorney consultations the first session is free, of course. Is your project worth pursuing? Is there a case here, etc?
